Electronic Recycling Program Held at OSI Chicago Is Great Success

Chicago, IL, USA, September 24, 2011 – As part of the “Going Green” campaign for OSI Chicago Operations, Eric Napientek, Assistant Vice President, hosted the first annual Electronics Recycling Event on September 23 in the plant’s parking lot.

At this event, employees were encouraged to bring unwanted, unused, outdated, and/or broken electronics for recycling. This included cell phones, computers, monitors, printers, scanners, fax machines, TVs, VCRs, radios, video games, and spent batteries. All were turned over to a recycling facility.

During the event, campaign organizer Pat Turner, with assistance from Dora Sanchez, informed employees of other ways they could have a positive impact on the environment. They also distributed reusable grocery bags, yard waste bags, pedometers, and stress balls to further remind everyone that every effort counts in the battle against pollution. The stress balls were in the shape of hard hats, to remind the team to keep safe through all of their efforts!

Bill O'Neill, Chicago Quality Assurance Food Safety Manager, does his part.

A total of 54 items was collected!
